

Women's Executive Club's Code of Ethics and Best Practices

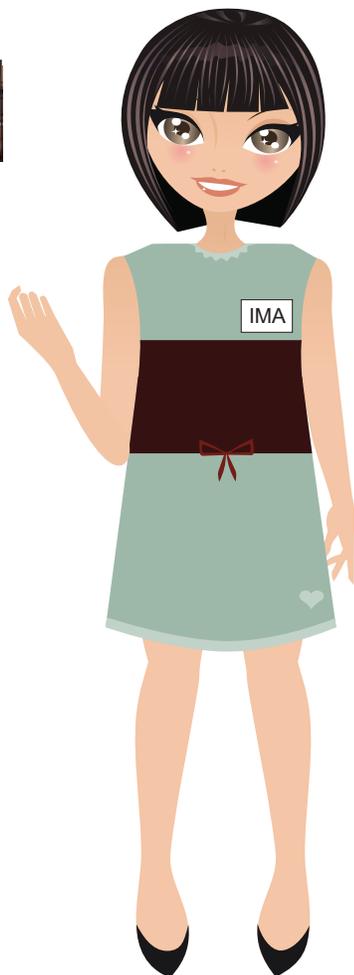

Take Care of Each Other:

The primary focus of WEC is networking with other business women, promoting each other in business and educating our members and guests through our speakers on topics that may affect their business. We encourage you to sit next to someone new to create new relationships and business. And most of all show respect and consideration for each other.

Don't Sweat the Small Stuff:

WEC works with Morton's Steakhouse to provide a variety of food choices that will accommodate our members' dietary needs. As a result, food substitutions of any kind are not permitted.

Respect Each Other:

When someone has the microphone, they have the floor and deserve your attention. Please do not engage in private conversation when others are speaking and be sure to silence all cell phones at the beginning of the lunch.

Celebrate Success:

At WEC we want to celebrate the success of our members. If you have news that you would like to share with the members, please email our VP of Communications so it can be communicated in the newsletter. Should you have marketing material that you would like to share with the group, you may display this information at the designated marketing table located near the check in table and not at the luncheon tables or place settings as this area is reserved for the scheduled speaker.

Be Accountable

RSVP's are requested for guests and required for members. Please be sure to respond to the RSVP emails sent by the VP of Membership each month and hold yourself accountable to keep your commitment. Any payments that need to be made for guests or corporate members should be done so prior to the luncheon or at the check in desk.

Better Late Than Never But Never Late Is Better

We all have hectic schedules but we ask that you please show up on time. Networking begins at 11:30 and the luncheon at 12:00. If you are not on time, a place setting and food can not be guaranteed

Learning From Our Experiences:

The Board of Directors encourages our members to provide us with feedback on how we can make things better by submitting their concern or recommendation via email to WECofSPBC@gmail.com
